Kære Niels Sandø og Hanne Vibjerg,

Blot for en god orden skyld,
Jeg ser jer lige et studie, som netop er blevet offentliggjort i det videnskabelige tidsskrift Nature.
Det handler om rygere, der skifter fra cigaretter til opvarmet tobak.
<https://www.nature.com/articles/s41598-022-22997-1>

Her er konklusionerne:

“In conclusion, the results obtained in the present study indicate that switching to four in-market heated tobacco products (IT2.0a, DT2.2a, THP, and THS) was associated with significant reductions in exposure to most of the selected HPHCs relative to smoking continuation in Japanese smokers. Significantly, the magnitude of the reduction in exposure to most of the selected HPHCs observed in the heated tobacco product groups was close to that observed in the SS group.” (SS – stopped smoking)

Kort sagt: Det ser ud til at overgang fra cigaretter til opvarmede tobaksprodukter giver effekter, der minder om at holde op med at ryge.
